THE PHILIPPINE RECONSTRUCTION—THE NAGA BOUNDARY.

To the Editors of THE LANTERN:

The Naga Boundary—Negritos and Small People.

A visit to the Philippines reveals the fact that there are many intelligent and observant natives living in the islands. These natives are of different tribes, and there are two principal races—natives of the original Filipino, representing all the natives of the island, and those of the Negritos. These latter are the Negritos, living in the interior of the island, and are distinguished by their short stature, their stocky figures, and their dark skins. They are also known as the Aeta, or Negritos, and are the descendants of the old inhabitants of the island. They are a very warlike people, and are said to be very fierce and savage. They are also very fond of tobacco, and are said to be very fond of rice. They are also very fond of tobacco, and are said to be very fond of rice.
