JOURNALISM CLASS "SEE'S PAPER PRINTED"

Evelyn F. Johnson

Getting Started

Miss Williams succeeds as a freshmen writer

Newspapers from other campuses are always a source of inspiration for our journalism students. The Johnsonian is no exception. We recently received a letter from a student at a neighboring college who was impressed with our work. She asked if she could write for us. We were flattered and agreed to let her try.

Her first contribution was a piece on the importance of diversity in journalism. She wrote:

"The world is diverse, and so should the voices we represent. It's crucial that we reflect the full spectrum of perspectives and experiences in our reporting."

We think she captured the essence of our mission perfectly. We're excited to welcome her to our team and look forward to her future contributions.

Dear Girls,

We have been down town a lot lately. Many are shopping and visiting stores. Winthrop posters, advising all passersby that this year’s Winthrop spirit is "The Johnsonian." We have found so many interesting things on our shopping trip, that as your editors, we feel constrained to urge you to visit the stores of car advertisers before Christmas. This year's Christmas holiday. Many of you will return to your homes in rural areas and town on at least one trip before Christmas. This holiday is the occasion of reciprocation: we have made many Christmas presents for you, and it is our responsibility to reciprocate by giving you Christmas presents for us.
