College Exchange

If we were to ask a grade in a New York or Boston college, or a similar grade in a New England college, her first thought would be "I do not know where the developer is, but I do know where the complete loyalty of an environment lives, and I am sure that it is my duty to be proud of her." There is no place like the University of North Carolina for the complete loyalty of an environment. The student is a member of a community, not just a student in a college. She lives in a world of people who share the same values and goals.

SATURDAY, APRIL 25, 1931

The President of the Student Body, Dr. J. M. Winthrop, will announce the results of the elections. There will be several new students, and we hope that they will be welcomed warmly into the community. The elections were held on the second floor of the Student Union Building, and the results were announced by the Student Council.

Dr. J. M. Winthrop

The College Choral Society

The College Choral Society will give a concert on Friday evening, April 25th, at eight o'clock. The program will include songs from various composers, including Handel, Beethoven, and Mozart. The audience is invited to attend and enjoy the music.

Keeping Up With the World

There has been a growing awareness that literacy is an essential tool for personal and professional success. The Johnstown Public Library has been at the forefront of this movement, offering a wide range of resources and programs to support lifelong learning.

The library's vast collection includes books, magazines, and newspapers covering a variety of topics. Visitors can find everything from the latest bestsellers to classic literature, from academic journals to popular magazines. The library also offers digital resources, including e-books, audiobooks, and streaming services, making it easier than ever to access information.

In addition to its print collection, the library hosts a range of programs and events designed to engage and educate the community. These include book clubs, author talks, film screenings, and workshops on topics such as technology, finance, and healthy living.

The library also plays a crucial role in providing resources and support to those who may face barriers to education. Services like literacy programs, job search assistance, and digital literacy workshops are available to help everyone succeed.

With a commitment to providing a welcoming and inclusive space, the Johnstown Public Library continues to be a vital resource for the community, fostering a love of reading and learning for all.

The proprietor of the Southern Hotel is a Clemson College alumnus, and as a member of the first class that attended when it opened in 1898, retains a very personal memory of Winthrop and the eventful day of May 12, 1894, when the corner stone of your wonderful school was laid.

Under the command of T. Q. Donaldson, Commandant, and being represented by E. B. Craighead, then president of Clemson, and the Hon. Ben R. Tillman, chairman of the board of trustees, we made the journey from Clemson to Rock Hill to be guests of your late beloved president, Dr. E. H. Johnson, at the memorable occasion. The event, at which Major General is the principal speaker, is well remembered by every Clemson man who was in that trip and stood at attention in the middle of a dusty street on a hot day, holding their hats over their heads throughout the ceremony. The entire student body had a pleasant time, however, and all look back on it with fond recollection.

We shall be honored to have your friends and relatives make our hotel their home while in Rock Hill. Our rates are surprising reasonable, considering the city. We render special rates to families and parties. Our hotel is unique and comfortable.
