The Naudaists left back in early June and went first to Pennsylvania college where Dr. Naudais enrolled in a course of study for a first semester. They then crossed the continent to Seattle, and embarked for Alaska where they viewed the incomparable scenic beauty of the Yukon country.

Homeward-bound, the Naudaists visited the fruit country of Washington, Yellowston National Park in Wyoming; then home by way of Iowa for a visit with Dr. Naudais's parents.

New Faculty Member Likes College "Poise"

"The Johnsonian" wanted to know how the new teachers liked Winthrop after a week. It was curious about their first reactions to the buildings, the girls, the general atmosphere of the place. On invitation, Dr. Marion Royall, associate professor of mathematics, who came to Winthrop from the Citadel, sat down for his first impressions, which follow:

loudness of the staff

Chips and Tidbits to put New Wine in old Bottles and to greet you again from this nook of the Johnsonian. With high hopes for a good year, we hand you your paper.

This we dedicate to freshmen only. We aren't going to preach; we're only going to give you a dash of the "How to Live at Winthrop" wisdom that has taken us three years to learn for ourselves. Now that you've received it, this cation week is over, and now you must live through Frosh Week.

Words of class president will be your way to becoming acclimatized. Orientation week was the beginning, now it is up to you to emerge from the cotton- bathtub and stand on your own feet. You're to do the same to make your dormitory as livable as your home. Remember that you are Winthrop students, think you've made a fine start — so forward, march!

This year we've returned to a Winthrop whose enrollment surprises us. We are proud that our Alma Mater can say we've brought some new life to her for South Carolina, but we'd like it better still were able to expand her buildings to fit the demands of her increasing enrollment.

Girls Galore—Oh, would Housing Nil that our walls were made of rubber! But in all seriousness, we'd like to congratulate the halls that had to be pushed around and accommodated whimsically, for the chummy way they've received their sentence. We'd like to bend them bouquet, but think they would more appreciate beds to park their new sable oxfords under. We're wishing for that new dormitory—our wishes must come true.

Each year when we return we always look for, and find, changes. At this moment we're almost afraid to see the change from forty-five minute to an hour. We only hope that the irregularly better-than-usual programs—programs that hold us while dinner awakes us.

Write your address when you visit their stores.

The Campus Town Hall
A forum for the discussion of matters of common interest to the Winthrop community
by ELIZABETH GUENEPPEL

Each year when we return to school, we find ourselves thinking that now we'll put aside newspapers, politics—things about which we felt concern during the summer vacation. Although many of our students, who, we believe, were concerned enough to become college voters, may not have turned our thoughts toward the coming elections, we are certain that they will wish to be informed about the results of the polls and the consequences of the election.

Dr. Paul Wheeler thinks: "The result of the elections will make it possible for us to go on with our work without interference from political parties."

Dr. Phelps tells Wesleyan students: "The elections have been won, but the real work of government has only begun."

Education is Our Greatest Security
Dr. Phelps Tells Wesleyan Students

In the army of American students lies the ultimate protection of American democracy, thinks President Sheldon Phelps, implemented by the temporary protection of armies, navies, and airships.

"Our own system of education offers the basis for the closest unification of all peoples, the most profound and the greatest protection, until, possibly, by the tragedy of Europe, we told students and faculty of the Georgia Wesleyan college of Macon, Ga., at the opening exercises of that institution yesterday. By the fact that the need of present preparation programs was "unattractive and indispensable" and that "as much as anyone I would see it as perfected with the greatest speed".

President Phelps thinks a defeat for Britain would mean "backtracking the centuries to Roman rule in 218" when the English nation was its battle for domestic and civic principles of government.

From Rome to Munich is long time," he pointed out, and "practically as Britain has gained in the democratic way of life in those more than 700 years, she has almost died in 5 years."

President Phelps believes that women will have an increasingly large part in restoring the civilization that now seems about to be torn apart. "Who will carry the many of the world's inventions, art, and the finer things it has been? Our children."

As far as students in the campus, the main, will achieve the greatest, will indicate the increasing number of career and out-of-field students which are more and more newsworthy.

"The latest is that what is in the history time of the history of time to be alive. And now is the most difficult in the history of time to keep alive."
